The Netherlands' Resume Impresses Recruitsoft

Known for its flexible and productive work force, it is not surprising that the Netherlands recently became home to a company that is setting the standard for technology that improves staffing processes. Recruitsoft, the San Francisco-based staffing management solutions company, has opened an additional office in Amsterdam to help facilitate its strategic expansion in the European market. Following the recent release of its widely adopted Recruitsoft Enterprise Staffing Solution with a configurable workflow collaboration platform, the company expects continued strong growth in 2002 and has already achieved significant adoption from G1000 companies, such as Hewlett-Packard and Procter & Gamble.

"Our expansion into Europe demonstrates our commitment not only to serving our customers in Europe with local resources, but also to offering staffing management services and solutions that provide global benefits for new clients," explains Recruitsoft's Chief Operating Officer Guy Gauvin. Recruitsoft has deployed its solution in more than 65 countries around the world.
