

Taleo Names VP Worldwide Marketing - June 9, 2005

Taleo Corporation, a provider of staffing management services and solutions, has appointed Susan Chenoweth as vice president of worldwide marketing. Ms. Chenoweth brings more than 20 years of software and technology marketing and communications experience to Taleo and has a proven track record of leading global marketing organizations in companies through significant stages of growth. In her new role, Ms. Chenoweth will be responsible for Taleo's worldwide marketing strategy and programs including corporate communications, public relations, analyst relations, customer and partner communications, field marketing, direct marketing, and creative services. Most recently, she served as vice president of worldwide marketing at Grand Central Communications, a provider of on demand integration solutions. "As we further our leadership position in the on demand talent management industry, it becomes increasingly important to strengthen our global marketing team to build our brand in the worldwide marketplace," said Michael Gregoire, CEO of Taleo. "The addition of Susan to our growing marketing team brings the leadership needed to help drive Taleo's aggressive growth plans."
