

Taleo Releases Employee Screening And Verification Tool

(San Francisco) – Compliance issues, fraud, workplace violence, and negligent hiring liability are driving increased corporate concern about inadequate screening and verification methods. The need has been underscored by at least one recent high-profile case of resume fraud in retail. The timing was right for talent management solutions provider Taleo Corporation to announce the availability of Taleo Verify, a background checking and identity verification solution for preemployment and routine employee screening. The solution is integrated with Taleo Enterprise, the company's talent management solution that helps large enterprises assess, acquire, develop, and align their workforces for improved business performance. Results are incorporated into a candidate or employee profile, streamlining the hiring and screening process. Taleo VP of Product Marketing Dave Michaud says turnaround time with Taleo Verify is 40% faster than other screening options on the market today.

Taleo Verify accesses criminal and licensure records databases daily via direct connections to state- and county-level court records. "Many organizations conduct pre-employment screening. However, technology hasn't been fully leveraged in the past for posthire and ongoing employee screening," says Gartner Research VP James Holincheck. "You don't have to look far beyond the headlines to see that workplace violence, employee theft, and fraud are a painful reality for many organizations," he says. The solution, available now, is powered by technology from background checking firm Verified Person.
